

The University of Illinois Medical Center (UIMC) offers Positron Emission Tomography/Computerized Tomography (PET/CT) at our Advanced Imaging Center, conveniently located off campus at 2242 West Harrison, Suite 103, Chicago, IL 60612. UIMC Radiologists use PET/CT imaging to determine the presence and severity of cancers, neurological conditions, and cardiovascular diseases.

WE OFFER CUTTING EDGE TECHNOLOGY SO YOU CAN OFFER THE BEST PATIENT CARE POSSIBLE

PET/CT combines the strengths of Positron Emission Tomography (PET) with those of Computed Tomography (CT) to produce images that can be used to help diagnose a number of diseases. PET is a non-invasive, nuclear medicine procedure that is able to detect certain diseases before other imaging modalities by visualizing the metabolic processes occurring in the body.

PET/CT IMAGING: THE BEST OF BOTH WORLDS

Multiple studies now show PET/CT results in superior specificity in staging & re-staging a variety of cancers. PET/CT also has the advantage of greater speed than conventional PET due to the use of extremely fast CT acquisition for attenuation correction purposes.

PET/CT IMAGING IS A NON-INVASIVE PROCEDURE USED TO DETERMINE THE PRESENCE AND SEVERITY OF MOST CANCERS, NEURODEGENERATIVE AND CARDIOVASCULAR DISEASES
